Sports Clubs

What is a club?

A club is an organisation consisting of people whose aim is to serve people's interests. In a club people with common interests come together to form a group.

What does a club do?

There are many different kinds of clubs, for example, for sport or music. There are also clubs whose purpose is to help other people, for example, clubs which support refugees.

What can a club do for me?

A sports club organises regular training. The club then bears the costs for the trainer, insurance or for renting a sports hall.

Where does the money for a club come from?

A club has members who are the people who regularly go to the club training sessions. The members pay money to the club in the form of a membership fee.

Membership Fees

- Club members generally pay a fee to the club once a year.
- This membership fee is paid for as long as you are registered as a club member.
- If you receive benefits from the job centre or as a refugee, you can ask if club membership fees can also be paid. (→education and participation)

Membership Fees

How does the club use the membership fees?

Purchase of equipment

Maintenance of equipment

Payment of trainers

Rental of sports hall

Club trips

Organisation of festivities

A tip for you:

Before becoming a member you can have a trial period.

That means you can go to the training sessions 2-3 times for free and without joining the club.
